PHILOSOPHY

Performance combined with DESIGN and FUNCTIONALITY

Research and development have always been at the core of our approach. We continuously experiment with materials, technologies and construction techniques, shaping each product around its function.

RRD – Roberto Ricci Designs was born from the sea. From these origins, we developed a culture driven by performance and innovation, researching and applying the most advanced technologies to materials and transferring this expertise into a clothing line designed to explore new horizons.

Our DNA lies in the ability to combine material research with the function of the final product. We do not pursue aesthetics as an end in itself: for us, form, performance and technology are all part of the same creative process.

We call this attitude Perf-Romance: the meeting point between performance and passion, technical culture and the pursuit of beauty.

This vision has enabled us to build a distinctive and recognizable identity in the world of clothing, bringing together technical expertise and elegance, forms and materials, treatments and colors through our own interpretation of Italian style.

SURFLEX®

FROM WATER TO URBAN LEGEND

Challenge is in the nature of RRD – Roberto Ricci Designs. Aware of our heritage and committed to technologically advanced future projects, we are redefining urban apparel.
By using materials and fabrics derived from water sports, we strive to become increasingly contemporary—because the most meaningful challenges are the ones we set for ourselves!

Our SURFLEX®, eco-friendly, unique and unmatched, embodies two enduring qualities: patented authenticity and certified sustainability.
It is a technical fabric with a super matte appearance that recalls more traditional textures. Compact, soft, and versatile, it is the ideal material for creating refined garments that are easy to wash and require no ironing.

- EASY CARE
- QUICK DRYING

TECHNOLOGIES

LASER CUTTING

To achieve a new level of lightness without compromising garment performance, RRD chooses to eliminate unnecessary fabric. To reach this goal, selected pieces in the collection are cut using innovative laser techniques that preserve the integrity of the fabric composition while enabling clean, precise edges. These can then be assembled using non-invasive methods such as bonding and taping.
Laser cutting is a technique that allows for accurate and clean fabric cuts, using heat to seal the edges and prevent fraying or excess threads.

GLUING

The bonding of two fabric panels is carried out by overlapping two edges of the material: the lower layer, onto which a strip of adhesive is applied (approximately 8–12 mm wide), and the upper layer, which is pressed on top under heat ranging from 250 to 300°C. This type of assembly does not involve any preliminary stitching to join the two edges (as is the case with taping) and is performed directly on raw-cut fabric.
In addition to eliminating the use of thread, this technique allows the garment to be completely waterproof.

TAPING

Taping can be applied either to two fabric panels whose edges are stitched together using thread and a sewing machine (S&T – Stitched and Taped), or to panels joined using ultrasonic welding (USW&T – Ultrasound Welded and Taped). In the first case, its function is to waterproof the seams; in the second, to enhance tensile strength.
It consists of a heat-applied taping process using a tape made from various materials. Typically, the same fabric as the garment is used, but nylon or polyamide tapes can also be applied.
The tape is coated with a heat-sensitive adhesive that, when reaching temperatures between 250 and 300°C, bonds perfectly to the underlying fabric, creating a fully waterproof assembly.

ULTRASOUND WELDING

It is an innovative construction technique that replaces traditional stitching. Fabric panels are fused together using an ultrasonic system, leaving the material free from needle holes.
To reinforce this bond, a tape is applied, making the outer shell more durable and fully waterproof.

W26001 | Surflex Winter Storm Jkt

An expression of contemporary, functional style, this winter jacket embodies the essence of RRD architectural design. The refined construction and comfort are enhanced by the waterproof and breathable Stratofabric#3, with a stretch SURFLEX® outer layer featuring a super-matte finish. The fixed hood and padding protect the wearer from the elements. The 90/10 duck down filling enclosed in totally seamless tubic channels ensures enveloping warmth without compromising on lightness. Distinctive details emerge in the contrast of the front closure and the thermo-taped zippers on the side pockets, while the inside reveals a breast pocket accented with a fluo orange detail and the heart-shaped 'Made with love, Designed in Tuscany' tag. The signature black micro-injected logo on the left sleeve defines this urban, dynamic icon.

W26071 | Terzilio Duck Coat Jkt

This classic men's wardrobe staple has been transformed into a statement of contemporary elegance, where tailoring and innovation coexist in perfect harmony. The Terzilio Duck Coat Jkt is made from an exclusive, lightweight, wrinkle-free, breathable fabric. The wool-effect, tech canvas shell highlights its impeccable construction, enhancing its effortless yet precise allure. Highly refined sartorial details define the silhouette: a shirt collar, horn buttons, and slanted side pockets. The central back vent allows for natural, fluid movement. The 90/10 duck down filling is enclosed in tubic channels that provide warmth and lightness. The absence of stitching prevents feathers from escaping and ensures optimal thermal insulation. The inner pocket, which has an invisible zipper, is accented by the double high-visibility orange piping and the signature "Made with love, designed in Tuscany" heart tag. The black, micro-injected logo on the sleeve adds a distinctive touch, expressing an urban style of sophisticated modernity.

W26082 | Dali Floating Storm Rev Jkt

The micro ripstop fabric with a crinkled effect, a sophisticated evolution of classic ripstop, defines this reversible jacket's identity. It is designed to transition through the seasons with effortless ease. One side boasts the technical lightness and durability of micro ripstop, while the other features a rhythmic, minimalist surface marked by seamless tubic channels. These are designed to hold the 90/10 duck down filling, which offers uncompromising warmth and comfort. The regular fit allows for freedom of movement, and the fixed, padded hood protects against rain and wind. The front closes with a full-length, two-way zipper. The taping, a key design element, outlines the zippers of the side pockets precisely, highlighting the garment's innovative character. On the opposite side, pockets with invisible zippers blend in discreetly. The high-visibility orange taping on the back - a defining feature of RRD's design language - and the black micro-injected logo on the sleeve set this versatile model apart, ready to stand out in both urban and outdoor settings.

W26177 | Wool Cash 7 Hybrid Duck Soft Knit

Performance and material research come together in this hybrid jacket, which reimagines outdoor wear with an urban twist through a sophisticated interplay of textures and volumes. The front and back feature the seamless texture of tubic channels that encase the lightness of 90/10 duck down. The sleeves and side panels, crafted from a technical blend of wool and cashmere in a simple knit, introduce a softer, more textured dimension, combining comfort, warmth, and a defined structure. The result is a balanced silhouette where functionality and style coexist in perfect harmony. The high collar, cuffs, and hem are finished with stretch ribbing for added comfort to the regular fit. The spiral zipper boldly cuts through the horizontal texture of the tubic channels, accentuating the design's dynamism. The invisible zippers on the side pockets preserve the clean lines. Inside, the signature tag "Made with love, designed in Tuscany" adds an iconic detail together with the high-visibility orange insert on the back hem and the black micro-injected logo on the sleeve. This versatile and sophisticated piece naturally pairs with the Collection's athleisure or cargo pants, creatively capturing the urban casual aesthetic.

W26180 | Terzilio Duck Val Soft Jkt

Drawing inspiration from the refined elegance of 1960s casual wear, this jacket bridges the seasons with a natural balance between tradition and innovation. The membrane fabric features a refined micro-canvas shell that highlights the garment's construction details, giving it an elegant yet understated presence. It has been reimagined with modern fabrics and high-tech construction. Carefully considered details enhance the design: the flap fastened with fine horn buttons conceals the front zipper, and the large side pockets with wide flaps define the jacket's character. The regular fit is defined by stretch jersey trim on the collar, cuffs, and hem for tailored comfort. The 90/10 duck down padding is contained within square designed tubic channels that provide thermal insulation and versatility. The inner pocket features a double neon orange welt and the iconic "Made with love, designed in Tuscany" heart tag for a distinctive touch. The black micro-injected logo on the sleeve completes the design, which is offered in sophisticated seasonal shades. It is crafted for a relaxed yet refined wardrobe where retro inspiration and a contemporary spirit blend together effortlessly.
